Re: Environmental Conservation and Chemical Corporation

Dear Sir or Madam:

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (U.S. EPA) has obtained documents which indicate that your company shipped hazardous substances to the site of the Environmental Conservation and Chemical Corporation (Enviro-Chem) located near Zionsville, Indiana. Under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980, 42 U.S.C. §9601 et seq., and other laws, you may be liable for any funds which the United States Government is or has been caused to spend to respond to a release of hazardous substances from the site, as well as any other appropriate relief a court of competent jurisdiction might grant under these statutes.

You should be aware that the site is the subject of ongoing litigation in United States v. Environmental Conservation and Chemical Corp. et al., a civil action (No. IP 83-1419C) filed September 21, 1983, in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Indiana. Over 275 generators, transporters, owners and operators are named as defendants. The United States is seeking injunctive relief and the recovery of costs incurred or to be incurred in responding to conditions at the site. On November 8, 1983, the court entered a consent decree, signed by the United States, the State of Indiana and approximately 250 of the defendants.

The decree provides for the cleanup of the surface of the site and payment of part of the United States' expenses incurred up to that time. The United States continues to seek from the thirty-three defendants who were not signatories to the decree any injunctive relief that may be required as well as any response and administrative costs not paid under the consent decree.

You and others were identified as potentially responsible parties (PRP) from shipping records discovered after the court action was initiated and the consent decree was entered. Now that your company has been identified, the United States also looks to you for the relief that has been sought from the non-settling defendants alone. Accordingly, you are subject to being made a party defendant to the court action.

The U.S. EPA met with the PRP's on May 30, 1984 to discuss a settlement relating to the site cleanup. At that meeting a steering committee was formed to coordinate the settlement effort. Your company was not identified as a PRP until after the May 30th meeting, so you could not have been invited to attend. Because of the large number of companies who are PRP's, the U.S. EPA cannot accept individual offers of settlement. Any settlement in this case will be reached with the PRP's as a group. If you are interested in participating in such a settlement you must contact one of the following PRP steering committee members no later than November 30, 1984:

After the Steering Committee has ascertained which companies are willing to participate in a possible settlement, they will commence negotiations with the United States on behalf of all participating PRP's in order to try to reach agreement on a consent decree.

In order to verify your company's relationship to the Enviro-Chem site, you may be interested in obtaining a copy of the documents which show that your company shipped waste to the site. The U.S. EPA is willing to provide you with all of such documents in its possession relating to your company if, within the next two weeks, you submit copies of any and all documents in your possession relating to your past transactions with Enviro-Chem. Such submittal must include an affidavit which states that you have reviewed your company's files and that to the best of your knowledge your submittal includes all of your company's documents relating to the Enviro-Chem site, or that you are unable to locate any such documents. I will then send to you the documents which are in the possession of the U.S. EPA.

Enclosed herewith is a copy of the Master List of Enviro-Chem Non-settling Generators for your information. Please contact Norman Niedergang, On-Scene Coordinator, at (312) 886-3011, if you have any questions.

Thank you for your cooperation in this matter.

Sincerely yours,
